About twenty teachers attended the institute held in Condon Saturday. The meeting was opened by singing "America," followed by a memory gem by each teacher present. Mrs. G. A. Berry then opened the discussion on geography, presenting the subject in a very able manner. She has picked up many little devices which enable her to make this subject interesting and instructive. After Mrs. Berry's talk the subject was discussed at length by others. The afternoon session was opened by J. C. Sturgill with a discussion on manual training in the public schools. Miss Banney then took on the subject of primary reading beginning with the pupil when he enters the school and briefly outlining the first grade work. J. S. Jent had the closing talk on primary arithmetic and numbers. He advanced some new ideas and methods which will doubtless be helpful to those who were present.
